Preface

As a yearbook, this Yackety Yack's task is to document the year 1984-85 and life in Chapel Hill. In an attempt to present a well-rounded portrait, this Yack has chosen not to separate the contents of this book into conventional sections, but instead we have combined the elements in much the same random manner in which people encounter them. The unforeseen juxtapositions within these pages were determined by the haphazard nature of the alphabetized format.

This Yack is a result of the work and contributions of our photographers and approximately 50 writers. We felt that the best way to accurately portray the broad cross-section of student sensibilities would be to maintain a balance of the bewildering variety of biases and personal visions. It would be absurd for us to assume that labels could be assigned to every aspect of life at the University of North Carolina. Rather, we have sought to provide only a framework for your consideration. The final interpretation is dependent upon your definition of your place within this critical analysis. In viewing each page, remember that each photograph contains value of its own. Each entry should serve only to complement the images, not assign meaning to them. Between A and Z we hope that you will find a personally satisfactory resolution of the colloquium of images we have presented.

A /ay/ n 1: the first letter of the alphabet 2: above average or superior in quality 3: the sixth note of a c-major scale 4: angstrom unit 5: used before words with a consonant sound 6: the grade your parents would like to see

ABORTION /a bort shun/ n 1: a morally controversial method of terminating a pregnancy. Proponents believe the option gives women control over their bodies to avoid unwanted children. Opponents declare that it is strictly murder. The public debate has become quite tense and, at times, (ironically) violent. 2: "Abortions will not end by making them illegal. The right to terminate a pregnancy is fundamental to the freedom of choosing to bear a child." — Doug Berger 3: "The child will never know the pretty things that make life worthwhile — like what it means to love. This is a very sad thing. He will not experience the twin joys — laughter and friendship. He will never experience the simple things like sleeping under a freshly laundered sheet or touching a velvet rose — minute particulars that bring happiness to our otherwise miserable conditions." — Dave Fazio

ACCONCI, VITO /a cont chi, vito/ n 1: sculptor and multi-media artist 2: "I want to put the viewer on shaky grounds so he has to reconsider himself and his circumstances . . . the viewer has to decide if he will accept this kind of aggression or find some way out of it."; See Also Fine Arts Festival

ACKLAND /ac land/ n 1: UNC's art museum 2: classrooms and studios recently made available to the Art Department 3: a building that is reflected in the courtyard design of the Hanes Art Center

ACTIVITIES /act i vat ees/ n 1: the qualities or state of being active 2: an organizational group with a specific function 3: motion within or between individuals or various campus organizations

Lankard

AIDS /roll/ n 1: acquired immune deficiency syndrome 2: a mysterious disease that eats away a person; transmitted by sexual or intravenous contact, homosexuals and drug users are considered the most threatened groups 3: David Leonard, UNC Medical School lab supervisor said, "We've gotten back to the old-fashion notion of courting. Most people aren't willing to take the calculated risk of finding a partner on a whim. They're looking at gay men as persons rather than sexual objects." — DTH 4: to offer help

ADD-A-BEAD /ad ae beed/ n 1: a necklace that contains anywhere from one small gold bead to over 100 beads of all different materials on a thin gold string 2: a necklace that is comparable to a string of teeth worn by a cannibal 3: most often seen with monogrammed sweaters on East Franklin and Rosemary Streets 4: status symbol 5: the number of beads reflects the girl's sexual promiscuity 6: predecessor of twist-a-bead

ADMINISTRATOR /ad minis trator/ n 1: a person legally vested with the right to handle an estate 2: enlightened and benevolent guardians of educational quality and responsibility 3: bureaucratic and short-sighted guardians of the Status Quo

ADULT EDUCATION /a dult ed u cae shun/ n 1: 42 year old man sitting at the back of your Math 31 class who asks all the questions and throws off the curve 2: learning to be an adult 3: learning from an adult 4: learning with an adult 5: learning about an adult 6: knowledge a child gives to a person above the "in" age

AFTER COLLEGE /aph ter call age/ n 1: the time following graduation 2:

After College life begins,
Dad no longer pays the bills,
Days no longer begin at ten.
Values become certain, attitudes concrete,
Jobs mold our outfits, money how we eat.
Spontaneous road trips end right where we are,
No more all day basketball or favorite morning bar.
So what is left after college is gone?
If there exists no room for irresponsibility,
If freedom is secluded from dusk until dawn?
We'll go through life and always look back,
Trying to recall the moments of free spirit and fun;
And peering into the darkness through our children's bedroom door cracked,
We'll wonder what college will mean to them
when they reach the age of 71.

AFTERMATH /aphter arith matic/ n 1: that which remains following any event or condition 2: the ruinous consequences of an insane night of partying 3: the beer cans and garbage strewn across the ground after a court party 4: the sigh of relief after completing the General College math requirement; See Also Residue

AIR GUITAR /heir gitar/ n 1: the process of mimicking a performer you aspire to be 2: an inflatable string instrument 3: a technique perfected by a Funky Winkerbean character

Callum

Callum

ALCOHOL /al co haul/ n 1: sometimes providing an escape valve, this curious chemical substance induces fits of euphoria or depression upon consumption 2: an extremely popular beverage, even surpassing milk and soft drinks. Contrary to popular belief, Coke is not it 3: an endangered species after October 1, 1986 4: a liquid found in Venable labs

ALL NIGHTERS /awl knights/ n 1: the practice of increasing one's waking hours by as much as 50%. Some might call this punishment for partying or procrastinating, but it is a valuable skill which most students will find useful after graduation. Don't let those excruciatingly efficient people who never stay up after midnight get to you — they don't know what they're missing 2: how teachers earn money through kick-backs from local fast food organizations by making their classes so hard that students must stay up and eat late night junk food to keep going

Kittner

ALLEN, CLAUDE /al en, clod/ n 1: UNC graduate 2: the first black person to serve any campaign staff position for Jesse Helms in 12 years 2: a traitor, according to John Hinton, graduate student and BSM member 3: "I still don't have much of an interest in politics — I am involved in politics because of the people and principles I hold to." — Claude Allen

ALPHA CHI OMEGA /al fa ki oh meg ah/

n: 215 E. Rosemary Street is the home of Alpha Chi Omega. Founded in Greencastle, Indiana, our sorority's colors are scarlet and olive, and our badge is a lyre of gold and pearls. Our motto "together let us seek the heights" joins the girls of Alpha Chi Omega in love and sisterhood. Celebrate with us as we commemorate this, 1985, the 100 year birthday of Alpha Chi Omega. The sisters of Alpha Chi Omega are girls who are fun, friendly, caring and unique. They are girls who encourage the qualities of leadership, academics, altruisms and social awareness. Through such activities they grow together — stressing one's own individuality and sisterly love for Alpha Chi Omega.

ALPHA DELTA PI /ow fah dealt ah pie/ n 1:

Alpha Delta Pi is proud to be an outstanding part of the UNC Panhellenic system. Established on this campus in 1939, A D Pi has maintained her high ideals by a commitment to enduring friendships, personal growth, and sisterly love upon which we base our lifetime pledge to Alpha Delta Pi. 2: The first national sorority established, A D Pi was originally founded at Wesleyan Women's College in Macon, Georgia, in 1857. Since then she has become one of the strongest national sororities. Her colors are azure blue and white which symbolize friendship and purity, and her flower is the Woodland violet. Each year A D Pi raises money for the Ronald McDonald House, our national philanthropy. 3: We pride ourselves on having diverse individual interests which are seen in our participation in a variety of community and campus activities. At the same time, we are able to maintain a strong unity which enables us to grow not only as a sorority but as individual women.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA /awl fa fie ohm egg ah/n: Alpha Phi Omega is a national service fraternity dedicated to the principles of leadership, friendship and service. In keeping with these three principles, the members of UNC's Rho Chapter sponsor a variety of projects yearly to perform service to the campus and community. Included in APO's ongoing projects are the coordination of all on-campus Red Cross Bloodmobiles, the maintenance of a Lost and Found service, management of a book co-op at the start of each semester, and participation in conducting campus tours. In addition to these projects, APO members also organize special service events such as visiting nursing homes and day-care centers, helping the sick and elderly with yard work, and fingerprinting local school children for identification. Campus Chest, APO's fund-raising committee, also sponsors several projects yearly to raise money for community and campus charities such as the Campus Y, Victory Village Day Care Center and the Orange County Rape Crisis Center. Campus Chest's biggest fundraiser is the Charity Auction, held in the spring, which raises around $2,000 each year for charity.

BLIND /blind/ n 1: camouflaged cover for hunters 2: absence of sight or vision. ► I saw a blind man today. Although at first I only saw him from a distance I immediately recognized him as one of the few blind students on campus. These are the people you make way for on crowded sidewalks while they tap along the edges of the sidewalks, moving as if they have each obstacle memorized.

But today something was different. As I approached him I noticed that his stick was nowhere in sight and he appeared to be wandering aimlessly around the yard in front of the handicapped dorm. His hands groped the air all around him and I wondered if someone had played a cruel trick on this person. My first thought was to go and help, that is until I noticed his smile. A wide toothful smile that was on the verge of outright laughter covered his face. And that's when I heard the clanking of the can.

Unbelievably, this guy was playing kick the can, by himself. He would kick the can and listen as it rattled across the bricks or dry earth. Then zeroing in on the sound, he would track down the can and move in for another blow. He never missed, he always connected on the first try. I stopped and watched for a while as he went on, unaware of my presence, to continue his joyous game. When I finally felt compelled to leave I realized that I too had a large grin on my face. He had just shattered all my false illusions and turned the tables on me. Perhaps it was I who had been blind all along and it was he who had enhanced my vision and made my day. ◀

CAMPUS GOVERNING COUNCIL

/kampus guvurning kownsil/ n 1: for members, the CGC is a practicing ground for debate while learning how to deal with widely varied ideologies and temperments. Members will tell you that the CGC is not a microcosm of American bureaucracy but a functioning arm of the student body. For non-members, the CGC is a multiple choice choice of possibilities. There is no right answer. CGC is:

- a) two letters of the alphabet
- b) 1985 Honda two-door that makes its own decisions and tends to stay in the middle of the road
- c) ?
- d) three letters of the alphabet
- e) filler in the DTH's blank spaces
- f) all of the above
- g) probably not (f)
- h) the functioning arm of the student body (based on a poll vote of 334:87:67)
- i) a funk rock group

2: The 66th session of the campus governing council, the legislative branch of student government, was one of great activity and controversy. Two crucial themes dominated the council — massive cuts in the budget for student activities and the progress of an organized campus political party, SEEDS (students effectively establishing a democratic system), calling for an active role in the campus community and, controversially, beyond.

Budget deficiencies from past years had been elevated by drawing upon a surplus created in past years. But these deficits and the financial fiasco of the spring concert in 1983 depleted the reserve and forced a balanced budget. The past budget of about $310,000 was cut over 25% to $220,000. Money was tight, extremely tight. Decisions were difficult and controversial. The survival of many organizations was threatened, including WXYC, the Phoenix, and SECS (sexuality education counseling service). After marathon sessions literally lasting all day and all night, a balanced budget was passed that satisfied nobody and left no group unscathed.

Controversy also surrounded SEEDS. Not only was it the only organized party in campus politics, but its program involved an unprecedented amount of involvement in issues that were not limited to the campus and had a definite leftist flavor. Candidates ran openly on this platform and the SEEDS banner. The electorate's response was mixed, with graduate students being supportive and undergrads less so. SEEDS members comprised a third of the council but through energetic leadership and persuasion they managed to get much of their program through. Their achievements included a commission on women and minority faculty, funding education on Central America, actions protesting the University's rejection of divestment from companies operating in South Africa and outlining protests in the event of an American invasion of Nicaragua. This last issue raised a storm of controversy, leading to a walk-out by conservative members and a month long debate on the back page of the DTH. This single issue stimulated the most interest in the CGC in recent memory.

CGC leaders, perhaps stimulated by the activity and controversy, provided about half of the nine candidates for the upcoming student body president race. Both run-off contenders, Doug Berger, a leader of SEEDS, and Patricia Wallace, a more traditional campus politico, were CGC leaders.

SEEDS' program prompted right-wing groups to mobilize candidates, although without an overt program or visible party banner. This group comprised about a third of the council for the 67th session. This reaction is just one element of the continuing effect that the 66th session's activism and controversy will have on the campus community. — Marshall Mills, CGC member 3: Get your files and your act together, guys. Let's not forget that CGC is a campus organization. — DTH editorial

It is no longer just the place Carmichael, where ball games are played; it's the feeling Carmichael. This is the ecstasy of motion and the accumulation of generations of wins and hard fights and, sure, losses, too. This is the opportunity for everyone to imagine his or her own winning slam or last-second steal for a half-court winning swish. Carmichael is the imagination of winning that everybody plugs into. The magic dust is skill and strength, not luck or referees. And the roar of the crowd is real. On February 23, 1985 the UNC men's basketball team played it's "last" game in Carmichael Auditorium. "When I walk out hearing the band play the same song for the last time on game day, it will be touching" — Dean Smith on the last game. ◀*

We've been waiting for a celeb deb like you to come to our campus since Brooke got bagged by Princeton. And we haven't forgiven Jennifer Beals for flash-dancing her way over to Yale. But we always knew you had more sense than that.

Come to UNC, Amy.

You'd like it here: We're just good ol' down home Southerners like you and Jim and Ros. Granted, we've got our share of carpetbaggers down here, but they're mostly them Moreheads they jockey up North to find.

We've got plenty to offer you, Amy. A tangle of general college requirements unmatched by other universities of our caliber. Knowing how you like astronomy, we've got an observatory here with your name on it. (Okay, so it's a figure of speech.) And if you have the urge to share your opinions on U.S. defense policy, feel free to tell it to the Pit.

The social scene, Amy, is unmatched. If Uncle Billy comes to visit and feels the urge to party, the weekend begins on Thursday night. (Not to worry: Mom and Dad will never know.)

Forget the North, Amy. It's nothing but a bunch of Kennedys running around, anyway. Remember how welcome your family was the last time they lived up there? North Carolina has everything, even its own Mondale liberal. (Daddy would like that.)

We could continue ad nauseum, Amy. The joys of off-campus living. The ecstasy of obtaining a parking permit. A top-notch football team. A first-rate student newspaper where you can read yesterday's news today. And the opportunity to be student body president and experience excess spending firsthand.

The pleasures are limitless living life as a Tar Heel, Amy. Enjoy your stay. Bring your dog, Grits, if you like.

Come to UNC, Amy. — DTH Editorial 10/24/84

CARTER, JIMMY /kar ter, jim e/ n 1: former president of the United States 2: Ronald Reagan's budget scapegoat 3: speaker at the 1984 Weil Lecture on American Citizenship. "In many ways President Reagan has succeeded. He is a master at giving the American people a sense of the nation being strong . . . powerful, of God, . . . a note of optimism when things go wrong. He's been successful in restoring to the American people a sense that we are militarily all powerful and that American force is something to be feared and honored around the world. But it's also a very short-sighted attitude. There is no use of diplomacy anymore. Me and my Republican predecessors were constant negotiators. No more — we have trouble with the Soviet Union, El Salvador, Nicaragua . . . I can't name one instance where the president or secretary of state were in negotiations.;See Weil Lecture

DELTA TAU DELTA /delta tau delta/ n 1:

As the last of the old Delts gave up the ghost following the condemnation of the old shelter on Pickard Lane, local alumni were already working hard to create a group of new Delts to re-establish Delta Tau Delta at Chapel Hill. With the devoted help of those alums and the full support of the national fraternity, twenty new Brothers were initiated in February of 1985 to begin a new chapter of Delt history at Carolina. The addition of ten more brothers in April of 1985 makes DTD once again a strong chapter already active in all phases of greek life. The Delts are currently in search of a new shelter that will help make them one of the most competitive houses on campus.

DERBY DAY /dur bee da/ n 1: yearly event when Ehringhaus field is mobbed by Greek types proudly displaying their letters in silly, insane competitions inducing ΦΥΝ 2: also known as the Derby Chase, the brothers of Sigma Chi cleverly convince the sisters of most campus sororities to chase them all over the campus under the guise of removing derbys from the brothers' head. DIANA /die ana/ n 1: a princess 2: a hurricane that howled into the Carolinas on Friday, September 14, causing more than $20 million in damage. It ripped off roofs, toppled power lines and blocked roads with water and debris. Despite its feminine name, Diana caused great panic among the residents of the coast, with the possible exception of the surfers. The 100 mile per hour winds damaged much of the coastline, but kicked up the best surf in ages. The National Weather Service claimed that Diana was the worst storm in N.C. since 1954.

EHRINGHAUS /air ing house/ n 1: high-rise dormitory located on South Campus 2: adventure in living ► I lived on what must be the North Face of Ehringhaus. Even when the sun is at its zenith, it fails to shine on both the balcony and window adjoining my room; in the middle of winter, the icicles which form there take more time to melt than they do on any other part of the building. To me, the phrase "North Face" conjures up images of permanent, treacherous ice, snow flumes, crampons, ice axes, loose rock, and most importantly, challenge. For many mountains, the north face provides the most formidable obstacle to ascent — it provides the most adventure. And so it was that living on this barren North Face of Ehringhaus that I have met the type of challenges normally reserved for the hard-men of the climbing world who set out to scale the dizzy mountain heights by the most precarious routes.

There were the football players who roam the balconies of my dormitory like bison in search of something to do other than eat grass; indeed, it was one of the great pleasures of life to be able to leave one's room at any time and, within ten minutes, see a football player. For men of great speed, they would walk incredibly slowly; for some reason, their eyes were sometimes bloodshot. Often, they wore t-shirts printed with such words and phrases as: "11 together", "hot dog", "streaker", or even "Tarheel of the Week". They would always say "What's Up?" when they passed you. The only way in which they ever disappointed me was the way that, this year, they failed to keep up the long-standing tradition of launching a Coke machine from the sixth floor balcony in the hope that it might fly. Year after year, it did not and it would ceremoniously land on the ground showering sparks and cans of Mello Yello.

One of the Housing Department's more progressive moves in the past year has been to dissipate the football players to other South Campus dormitories on South Campus so that now, other lucky people like myself get mingle with those giants of athleticism who keep up high on Saturday afternoons.

There were these peace-loving lacrosse boys. These wild-men from the North were one of the main attractions around Ehringhaus. For most of the week, they hung out on the balconies and would fix their lacrosse sticks. But, on any night after they won a game, they would go crazy. They would consume a lot of alcohol and set out to "alter" as much as they could. I could write more but all I need put down in what one of them once said to a poor soul who are decided to argue with one of these men. "Listen jerk", he asked, "we're going to rock f ____ing world — don't get in our way".

One of the brilliant ironies of it all was when the lacrosse and football players got together to have some fun — they were remarkably subtle and cunning. One evening a few of them got together; a footballer phoned up a certain female who he knew would come over at a moment's notice for a little "action". She was overcome and came over she did. However, all the time that she was having some fun with her favorite football player, the others were hiding in the room enjoying the scene before them. "It was better than eating at the training table", one of them remarked to me later. Unfortunately, while the action was in progress, one of the lacrosse players' giggling triggered a chain reaction of hysterical laughter which sent the girl, once she had picked up her bra, running out of the dorm ...

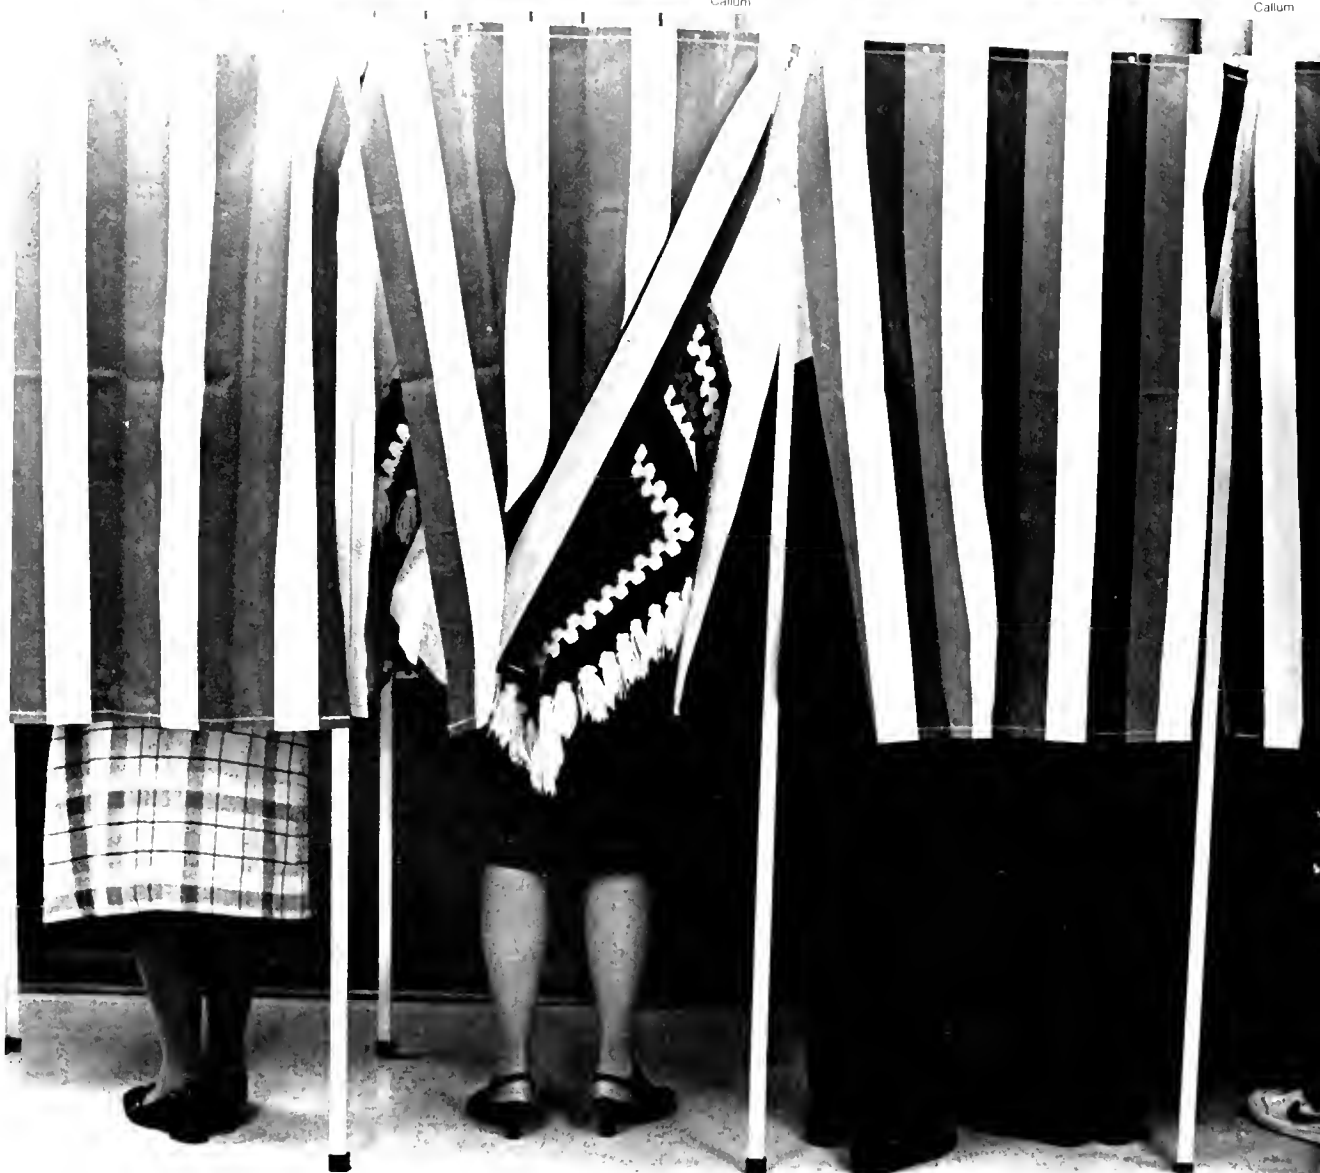

One of the other fine aspects of Ehringhaus had to be the wild social life. One fine evening, my floor held a party; what impressed me the most about it was the way in which the beer ran out as quickly as the money for a new keg did. The social chairman couldn't quite understand why people didn't go to parties anymore. There were also those wonderful parties for the basement which they ironically called "Coffeehouse". It was an apt name, for during parties, the room bore a remarkable resemblance to a coffee percolator. I remember the Halloween Bash" where it was so hot and so sweaty that everyone's costumes, make-up, and spirit melted simultaneously. ◀

After all, who has time to cook or even go out to eat, let alone dress nicely, put on makeup or even shower. This is also the season when horrible creations like pizza and coffee are eaten three times a day. Coffee making expertise is judged by the ability to make the strongest Joe on this side of poison. Commencement address, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill May 12, 1985. Charles Kuralt.

President Friday, Chancellor Fordham, distinguished guests, and all the members and family and friends and lovers of the graduating class — and especially all the mothers of the graduating class ... There must be mothers here who never thought this day would come. So this is truly Mother's Day!

I am a Tar Heel born and A Tar Heel bred, and when I die I'm a Tar Heel dead — but this is my first Chapel Hill Commencement. I did not quite qualify for attendance at the graduation of my own class. My Mother was disappointed. But this was worth waiting for: a good seat and a chance to make a speech!

By ancient tradition, the Commencement Address is full of advice, and so this one will be. I left Chapel Hill on a spring day like this one thirty years ago. I have been waiting for thirty years for someone to ask my advice — and I wish to express my deep appreciation to the class of 1985 for finally asking.

Thirty years is a blink of an eye in the long story of the human race, but it is a long time in the life of our nation. Thirty years ago, on graduation day, we were just beginning to think about the deep racial injustices that existed in our country, and especially in our native region. We had not yet begun to think about the attitudes and laws which were unfair to women. We had no particular awareness of the strains we were putting on the environment; "ecology" is a word I believe I had not heard; the idea of the earth as a spaceship, with a limited supply of fuel and food and water, and a constantly growing passenger list — an idea that is familiar to every third-grader in North Carolina today — is an idea that had not yet occurred to us. We have come a good long distance in thirty years, and we have come by many different ways, but the main way was by learning to care about one another. We still have a long way to go, and since you ask my advice, here it is: Care about one another.

I believe the world is good and evil, and that much evil masquerades as good. We see politicians of undoubted popularity leading a great nation into postures and positions unworthy of a great nation. They have increased our military power immeasurably — and reduced our moral influence in the world to the point that it is also no longer measurable. We know there is a difference between the United States and the Soviet Union — but most people in the world can no longer see it. We are long on force and short on principles.

We see businessmen, much admired for their mastery of the leveraged buyout, treating great enterprises patiently constructed over the decades as a load of pork bellies to be bought in a morning and disposed of in the afternoon. A million here, a hundred million there, pretty soon it adds up to real money.

We see preachers on the television preaching hate.

What do we have to fight back with?

We have the Constitution, and the English language. Both were given to us. We did nothing to deserve them, but they are ours to use. We will not deserve well of history if we do not use them now — to say what?

To say that they are wrong, these smiling men in high office who think themselves so adept at orchestrating opinion, who help themselves and their friends without ever reaching out to help a struggling people overseas, and without ever reaching down to help a struggling family at home. They embrace dictators. It would never occur to them to embrace a promising poor child. They turn their backs on all America is supposed to stand for.

To say that we will not permit the corporate rider to become the standard bearer of our commerce, enriching himself on generations of other people's labor — even if his picture does make it to the cover of the news magazine.

To say that we will not be frightened by any Bible-thumper shouting what Jesus said into forgetting the one thing Jesus undeniably said: "Love one another."

Every graduating class faces challenges beyond the personal ones, and bears the responsibility to do, in the phrase of Norman Corwin, "to be a little civil thinking every day." The misplaced priorities of our nation, and greed in public life, and the perversion of religion are among the challenges faced by the class of 1985, and I have hope that you will prove equal to them, because I know the place you come from.

It was on this campus, all those years ago, that I first became faintly aware that there is, in this state, and in this nation, and in this world, an association of men and women, who, while they may not even know one another, might still be called a conspiracy of good people.

Carl Sandburg of Flat Rock, who was one of them, described them as the "saving minority" — those always willing to be heard when they have to be heard. Think of our state. From time to time, it has sent scoundrels to represent us in Washington, but always, always, here at home, the saving minority has returned us to reason, compassion and decency. And the headquarters of this impulse for good has always been Chapel Hill.

What if there had been no Edwin Alderman to say, "I have an idea for this University. My desire would have it a place where there is always a breath of freedom in the air." What if there had been no Horace Williams to use that freedom to outrage and educate? What if there had been no Frank Graham, who knew that this old campus on the hill was a fortress against pettiness and cruelty and injustice and ignorance in our state — who declared it a fortress: "a stronghold of learning" in his words, "and an outpost of light and liberty among all the frontiers of mankind." And what if there had been no William C. Friday, who came along just in time, with a wise understanding of this tradition, and who, nobly, has kept the light burning, and made it burn brighter?

What would North Carolina have been without this great faculty, inspiration to us in every generation, and adding, with each graduating class, a handful of new members to the conspiracy of good people, to the saving minority of those who care?

My own father is one of those who came to Chapel Hill . . . and found his conscience here . . . and left to care and serve until this day, so I came to know one of them early. And recognized others as I met Bill Geer and Paul Green and Phillips Russell and Walter Spearman and Terry Sanford and Jim Wallace and Tom Wicker and Al Lowenstein and Joel Fleishman and John Sanders and many other men and women I could tell you about. You could tell me about others still.

Callum

Ledford

And so, in concentric circles, as if from a pebble tossed into a pool, the influence of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill moves outward to the farthest corners of our state, and far beyond its boundaries.

This University knows that ignorance will have its innings, but will always lose in the ninth. This University says to us here gathered: Now I give you another class, among whose numbers are those who know, because they learned it on this hill, that there are purposes and undertakings ahead that are decent and compassionate, and unsullied by arrogance, or hostility toward other people, or delusions of superiority, or motives of greed, and who will embrace those undertakings as members of the saving minority, the conscience of our country, the conspiracy of good people.

Care about one another, and not only those of your own clan or class or color. I wish you long life and good fortune, of course. But my warmest wish for you is that you be strong enough to show it. That is a commandment, by the way, and not from me.

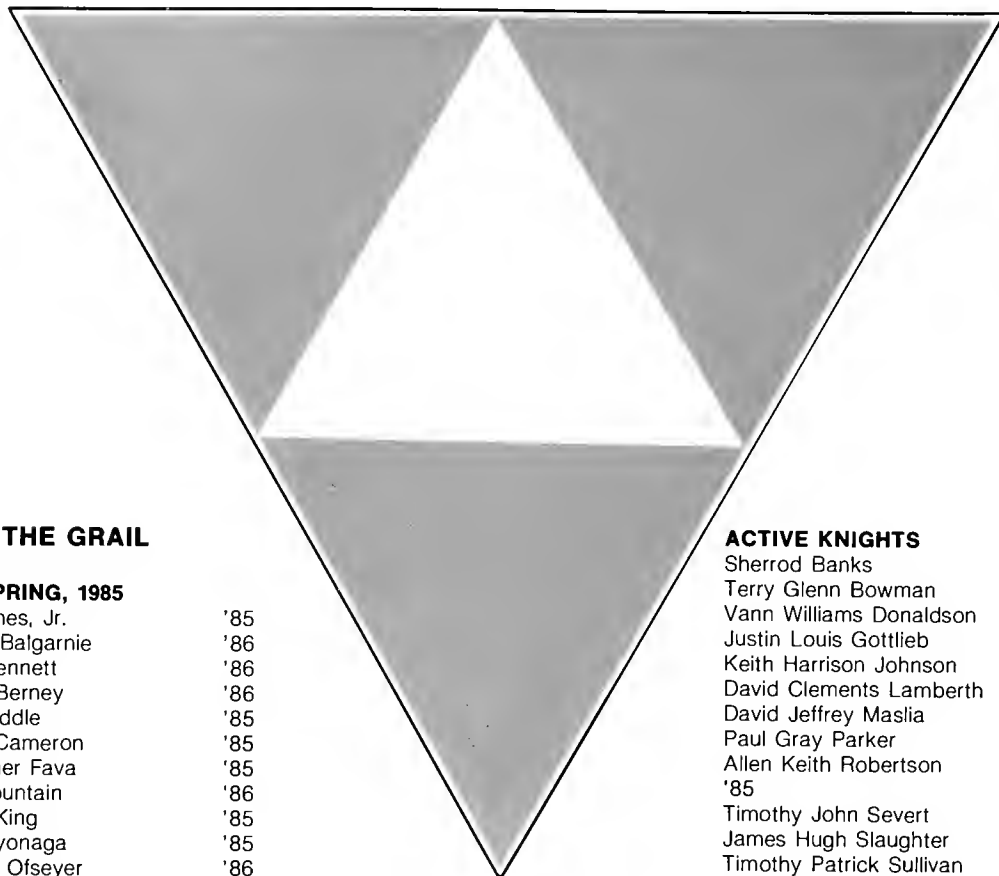

I believe it is also the highest expression of civilization.

KENAN MEMORIAL STADIUM /key non sta de um/ n 1: Home of UNC Football team 2: structure nestled among the towering trees of south campus 3: an open-air arena used about half-a-dozen times a year. On graduation day Kenan has been blessed with a long tradition of sunny days, that is, until graduation ceremonies are moved into a SA-C. ► As the tower's bells chime, the Tar Heels march together, down pathways trod by their forefathers and fraternity brothers before them. Autumn leaves sweep around their penny loafers as they pass by in their tribal garb of plaid, khaki, and Carolina Blue. Armed with an arsenal of flask, seat cushion and scalped tickets, they file through the gates of the mecca known as Kenan Memorial Stadium. Their pilgrimage complete upon arrival at their appointed concrete seat. ◀ ; See Graduation, Football, Supplements

KU KLUX KLAN /ka ka ka/ n 1: a secret society of white men founded in the Southern States after the Civil War to re-establish and maintain white supremacy 2: "the Invisible Empire, uses terrorist methods. ► "Those of you who write the KKK off as a harmless bunch of kooks should take a closer look at our campus. The most flagrant example of white supremacist philosophy on UNC's campus is Kappa Alpha's annual Old South party. Flying confederate flags and fondly remembering the days when we treated a race of people like cattle is an offense against God and humanity. We educated people at UNC might flatter ourselves that we hold nothing in common with Klansman. I wonder. Perhaps our quiet acceptance is more support than they ever hoped for." — George Loveland, DTH editorial "You beaten, feminine, limp-wristed, over-educated, mind-conditioned cowards can continue sipping on your six-packs, smoking your dope, watching the niggers play ball on television, and wallow in degenerate lust, while American inhabitants become total 'zombie-robot-wage-slaves' for international Jewry, if you so desire, we will fight." — DTH letter to the editor in reference to the coverage of the Klan-Nazi trial in Greensboro. ◀ ; See Also Ellis, C.P.

KNOWLEDGE /null edge/ n 1: that which separates the wise from the foolish 2: dust shaken out of a book into an empty skull 3: the fact or condition of being aware of something to the extent that it can be used on the upcoming test

KURALT, CHARLES /cure alt, char els/ n 1: CBS News correspondent, known for his "On the Road" work 2: almost a graduate of UNC 3: speaker at 1985 graduation ceremonies 4: a swell guy; See Also Graduation, Supplements

L /el/ n 1: the middle letter of the alphabet 2: Spanish for masculine "the" 3: British for "hell"

LAB /lab/ n 1: a retriever characterized by short dense, usually black, coat and breadth of head and shoulders 2: period of servitude to a T.A. (teacher's assistant) when one delves into the mysteries of science and foreign languages, at least one is required for graduation 3: a place equipped for experimental work or study, also Laboratory

Allende

LACROSSE /lax/ n 1: a game using long-handled rackets, to advance the ball into the opponent's goal, Carolina ranks third nationally 2: originally played by North American Indian warriors, now played by studly Northern hell-raisers on scholarship.

► Welsh's fourth goal of the afternoon came with 12 seconds left and gave UNC an 11-10 win over top-ranked Johns Hopkins in front of 6,200 at Fetzer Field Saturday. "I didn't see anything" the elated freshman said after the physical, penalty-filled game. "There was so much sun behind the goal. I knew where he (Quinn) was, so I just shot off to the side and hoped it went in." It did. Bedlam ensued. — DTH report on Lacrosse victory on April 4, 1985. ◀

LATENIGHT /lat nit/ n 1: the hours between 12:00am and Dawn 2: (with David Letterman) a viable alternative to a latenight with the Zete's or SAE's, it features band leader Paul Schaefer, Viewer Mail, Stupid Pet Tricks, Dave's Fugitives, the Phil Donahue Comes to New York Countdown, a collection of guests including Dr. Ruth, Boy George, Ted Koppel, and Little Steven, and of course David Letterman, the man who made double-breasted jackets and a gap between the teeth suddenly attractive

LAUNDRY /lawn dry/ n 1: something you always thought the elves took care of 2: the dirty clothes that are ignored until one has no clean underwear, at which point they are cleaned and the process repeats itself 3: the source of the smell emanating from your closet 4: a week-long process; the first day is devoted to the gathering of soiled articles from their various hiding places and delivering them to the laundromat. Following the separation of garments into various races and species we discover our lack of detergent. Day 2 finds us returning to recover our still wet clothing we left in the dryers overnight? Immediately proceed to dangle wet items from clothesline. Day 5 sees us retrieve our stiffened, sun-bleached, rain-rinsed threads from the line and add them to the pile on your chair. On day 7 we attempt to distinguish the clean from the dirty and hang up all our wrinkled shirts for another month's storage. ▶ "Students cannot live by sweats alone." — famous laundry quote. ◀ ; See Chapel Hill Cleaners, Soap

LINE /lyn/ n l: often described as a way of life at Carolina, the phenomenon of people standing behind one another while waiting for: tickets, drop/add, elevators, food service, textbook buying, cash machines, pitchers at Henderson Street, He's Not Here, Troll's, etc., buses, parking permits, housing lottery ... 2: a distribution method of allotting drugs before inhalation 3: shortest distance between two points 4: the item you suspend your clothes from 5: the players who line up within one yard of the scrimmage line

► For impatient people, lines were sheer torture. It seemed like whatever a person had to do, he had to wait in line before he could do it. Whether it was going through drop/add, buying books, standing outside in the freezing cold to get basketball tickets, or trying to get into the shower, everything required waiting in lines. An individual never knew when he'd find himself stuck in a line, so he had to be prepared at all times. One always needed to have on hand a couple books, the DTH crossword puzzle, or paper on which to write home begging for money. If none of these things seemed exciting, one could always manage to sleep standing up. If one hadn't learned the art of standing in line before coming to college, he sure learned it after a few months in Chapel Hill. ◀

McDOWELL, JOSH /josh is here/ n 1: it sounded radically collegiate. As a freshman, I was ready for something weird, utterly different from any high-school assembly speaker. Although not as incredible as I'd expected (or maybe more incredible than I'd hoped for), Josh turned out to be very insightful and offered more common sense advice than I'd received from any source on campus so far 2: inspirational speaker who visited Carolina in September, 1984; extremely popular speaker, author, and recording personality, he has spoken to more than 7 million college students at more than 600 universities in 62 countries. His current lecture topic is called "Maximum Sex" and expounds on the value of love and trust over a purely physical relationship. "Most people don't learn to control their sex life before marriage. That makes it hard to control after your marriage. But learning to control your sex life is not easy. We live in a society that has been conditioned to have immediate satisfaction of every need." ►

One of these benefits was described as 'you can get up to 35 meals for only $100.' 35 meals for $100 is no big bargain. My roommate and I can eat three meals a day, seven days a week (that is 42 meals) for less than $60. So no one is doing anyone a favor charging one person $100 for what may add up to 35 light meals." — Julie Wise, Cobb 2: "the meal plan is giving ARA an up front sum of money so they can invest it. Students should not have to subsidize a private enterprise for a profit." — Doug Berger 3: "It has been done. It is set in stone ... to further the issue will only mean an incredible waste of time and effort and monies." — Paul Parker, vetoing a CGC bill to hold a student referendum 4: "Hey-hey, Ho-ho, the meal plan has got to go." — Sherrod Banks

MOTHER'S DAY /mɒz da/ n 1: the second Sunday in May 2: commencement day 1985 3: the one day in which mothers are thanked for that which they have done the other 364 days: See Graduation

MOTION /moʃn/ v 1: to beckon or gesture 2: to make a proposal for action n 3: a movement

Callum

MOVING DAY /muv ing daze/ 1: days of bedlam and uproar. Full of boxes, orchestrating parents, and extremely tense RA's. Prevailing question of the day; Where am I going to put all this stuff 2: a mathematical calculation in which the number of friends/hallmates available to help you is directly proportional to the number of stairs which must be climbed 3: a clutter of initials — AC, AD, OC, RA; that time when you accidentally call your dorm room "home"; a rattling fan cooling a sleepless body; LOTS of lines; your own little "house", with too little drawer — space and an eternity of pitted wall to cover; trying to put a fitted sheet on a mattress in a loft

Lankard

Callum

MUDSLING /mud sling/ n 1: a DKE ritual that begins with a late night party complete with sprinklers, much beer, too many feet, and not enough space. It ends in a out-of-control celebration of raw moist earth 2: the time when baggers get dirty 3: the darnest mudwrassle you ever did see 4: to hurl derogatory remarks at an opponent; Also Mudslide; See Also Negative Campaign, Debate

Callum

Callum

Callum

MURPHY, EDDIE /murf e, ed e/ n: the comedian, movie star, and ex — not ready for prime time player that sold out the 7000 tickets for his March concert in Chapel Hill.

MUSIC /mu zic/n 1: the science of control over tones and sounds 2: a pleasant or agreeable sound 3: what can be heard on both WUNC and WXYC

Callum

Kittner

MUSIC TELEVISION /empty ve/ n 1: radio with a picture 2: modified tunnel vision 3: an opportunity for many musical artists to express their visual bankruptcy

Callum

N /en/ n 1: the 14th letter of the alphabet 2: an indefinite number 3: noun 4: North 5: note

NAPALM /nay palm/ n 1: a thickener used in gelling gasoline in the making of incendiary bombs 2: a word unheard of before the Vietnam War 3: the battle cry of the NCAA Championship Women's Soccer Team

NEGATIVE CAMPAIGN /mud sling/ n 1: a technique of self-promotion in which one party emphasizes the danger in their opponents opinions instead of explaining the value of their own 2: The N.C. Senatorial Race; See Also Debate, Mudsling

NERD /nerd/ n 1: dren spelled backwards (didn't you watch "Happy Days") 2: someone whose tastes are different from you own 3: often the stars of recent Hollywood movies 4: stereotypically thought of as the Math/Physics major; but with recent swings in public opinion, this label has been placed on the so-called "Preppy." Such dinosaurs still exist despite attempts at social reform through techniques such as ostracism or employment.

NIGHTLIFE /nit lif/ n 1: activities that occur after the sun has left the sky 2: the time when the assorted creeps, cools, crazies and other critters come out to roam Franklin Street and grovel en masse in the local night spots 3: when most papers are written

Callum

NONPRINT /nun print/ n 1: material not containing the written word 2: the portion of the Undergrad library with the longest waiting line 3: the place where most of Shakespeare's greatest works can be experienced in less than 3 hours; See Also Undergraduate Library

NORTHERNERS /furr in erz/ n 1: human beings from anywhere above Virginia 2: those who do not know that it can snow in North Carolina 3: most folks that carry ice skates or lacrosse sticks 4: the newest Tarheels 5: often loud-mouthed, unabashed folks with a tendency to eagerly share their exact feelings or interpretations of any situation in any social context with any stranger that might be unlucky enough to be in range of their voice; Also DamYanks

O

O /oh/ n 1: the 15th letter of the alphabet 2: zero 3: an exclamation of surprise or understanding 4: orgasm

OBITUARY /o bit/ n 1: a notice of someone's death 2: the column that this year included Truman Capote, Konstantin Cherneko, Carmichael Auditorium and far too many UNC students

OBSERVE /ub zerv/ v 1: to acknowledge or inspect an omen, rule, or custom 2: to see through careful attention 3: to remark or comment

Geoffron

Callum

O'BOY /oh boy/ n 1: an all female band 2: the "Synthesizer Sisters" 3: source of much fraternal excitement

OFF-CAMPUS LIFE /of kamp us lif/ n 1: the world existing beyond the confines of the University 2: various cultural experiences encountered apart(mented) from dorm existence 3: no fire drills, pimp prostitute mixers, SBP campaigners at the door, nor any bans on hot plates 4: any of an array of living situations consisting of houses, apartments, roommates, cats, dogs, lizards, landlords, electric companies, bills, yards, and weeds 5: the kind of housing you live in after you're shafted in the dorm lottery

PHI MU /fie mew/ n: Carrying on a tradition for over 130 years, the second oldest national sorority currently resides in Chapel Hill at 211 Henderson Street. The Gamma Lambda chapter of Phi Mu has been chartered on UNC's campus for 20 years. It's continued excellence is due to close knit friendships, scholastic encouragements, and diverse social events. Sisters consider the sorority as a base point from which to reach into the university community through involvements in Campus Y, student government, and school athletics. Phi Mu's are proud of their responsibilities which make their college experience a unique and special one.

Vocalist — Kimberly Johnson
Dear Mr. President,
I hope you don't think me bold,
But, I know something special,
That really should be told.
If the people who live in this great land,
Saw fit to make you their leading man,
I think there's something they should know,
They've also got a part in the All-American show.
And if we all do our parts,
The very best we can,
Our show will surely be a hit,
With you as leading man.
So you can see the reason sir,
Why they should all be told,
Even if it's by a kid,
Whose only twelve years old.

There's been hope in America,
And it's spread across the land,
Since Reagan became our leading man.
He has tackled the economy,
And he's built up our defense,
He's done the things
He thought should be done.
And he's shown the world
We're back to stay
The best there is, the USA
With liberty and justice for all,
Put your vote back into America,
Keep Reagan as our leading man.

America, America,
God shed his grace on thee
Keep this land always
Safe and Free,
Let there always be democracy,
He'll put this country
Back where she belongs,
Now the time has come
For all to show,
What our country means to us,
With Reagan
We'll win our victory.
And this land of the Brave and free,
Will go down in our history,
As the greatest one
That man has ever known.
Put your vote back into America,
Keep Reagan as our leading man. ◀; See Also

SENIOR CLASS GIFT /big buks/ n 1: a gift traditionally given to the university by it's graduating class 2: a campaign that collected pledges totaling $194,000.00, shattering both the class goal and the U.S. record. It boasted 35% participation of eligible students. The gift, after months of debate and controversy, will be plaques and a statue.

SHOE /shoo /n 1: a protective covering for the feet 2: an arced metal plate that is nailed to a horse's hoof 3: photographic device that permits the use of a flash 4: occasionally referred to as a sneaker or tennis shoe, the athletic variety of shoe comes in a wide range of styles. The current rage in endorsed models is undeniably the Air Jordan, originally available in variations of a red, black and white color scheme, now can be obtained in a greater variety. But the old standby is the original endorsed shoe called the Chuck Taylor (or Chuckies, Chucks, All-Stars). Its canvas exterior remains the most colorful personality to have pounded the pavement of Chapel Hill. Chucks have many moods — basic black, traditional white, sporty red, even camouflage as well as a hundred varieties of lacing and custom decoration

SIGMA NU /sig mah knew/ n: Sigma Nu is a group of guys who are unified in a sense of brotherhood. The group is a fun-loving bunch, and our porch band parties are some of the best on campus. But we are more than merely a social club; at the Sigma Nu house there is a dedication to honor and to the other brothers that we feel is unsurpassed on campus.

SIGMA SIGMA SIGMA /try cig/ n: Tri

Sigma is a sorority which values the individuality of her members and unites them in her spirit and traditions. An active group of women both on campus and in the community, Tri Sigma members participate in many extracurricular activities ranging from the Tarheel Marching Band to the Women's Rugby Team to College Republicans and Young Democrats. In addition, Tri Sigma sponsors several playrooms at North Carolina Memorial Hospital that provide play therapy for children and adolescents. Although Tri Sigma sisters are a diverse group, each woman is a priceless link in the chain of sisterhood.

TIME /tiəm/ n 1: something that can not be stopped 2: measureable period where an action, process, or condition exists or continues 3: history 4: an hourly rate of pay 5: sufficiently early ► It is nearly time for graduation. In only a few weeks there will be a sunny afternoon, never rainy, in which parents come to see the event which for them represents those years they have paid for their kids to be away from home. I won't be graduating with this class, however. I need to stay here at least another semester in order to graduate. My parents are coming up anyway. They figured that this is when I was supposed to graduate, so why not come up? Hell, I might even dress up and go through the ritual myself. Right now many of my friends are concerned about their upcoming exams. For many of them, these are indeed their final exams. Fortunately for myself, my biggest concern is my 12:00 appointment tomorrow. At that time, I will go and see Red, the barber, and get my hair cut. Red is an older man whose hair is no longer red. I honestly do not think that Red will get any older. You see, the thing about Red's chair, in Red's barbershop, is that it faces a clock. On this particular clock, in this particular store, time runs backwards. The hands on Red's clock run backwards. He claims that the clock is a victim of an electrical storm, and now the hands run in the opposite direction. It keeps perfect time says Red, and I believe him. I like to set my appointments for noon because when I arrive I can look up at his clock and it reads 12 noon and I'm right on time. But by the time my haircut is finished it may be 1:00 but according to Red's clock it's 11:00. I like to think that when I leave I have gained an hour, but as soon as I return to the street there is always this giant bank sign glaring its correction at me. 1:03 and now it's 87 degrees. But I am reassured in knowing that I can't trust this clock completely either. It never agrees with what the people on the radio tell me. I am at least assured in thinking that maybe for each hour passed in Red's shop you negate it. Therefore, time spent there is, in fact, timeless, almost like Red's jokes.

Meanwhile, it is approaching midnight at my house. This is the time one of my roommates can take a break from studying to ring the makeshift bell on our porch. This is a recent habit of his where he competes with the Bell Tower. This ceremony of time recognition has a dual purpose though. Our neighbors and their small children are certainly in bed already and their little dog, too. Every morning since they have had this cute neurotic puppy, the right side of our house has been awakened by the early morning call of "Pippin (clap, clap, clap) . . . Pippin" repeated over and over again.

Well, this bell ringing is our sort of revenge. At 1 a.m., there would be only one gong so nobody would be very uptight, but right about now everyone is rather nervous with a kind of guilty anxiety for the hour of midnight. We know now that it has to be done, but how can we allow ourselves to bang this abandoned woodstove we use as a bell those 12 long gongs that are approaching. Still cringing after the last reverberations echoed down the street, I am still amazed that our neighbors have yet to complain. The group that had gathered to hear the ringing of the bell has just settled back into their studies. From across the room, I hear the faint, but distinct beeping of my roommate's L.E.D. wristwatch, signalling another hour of midnight. I don't know who or what to believe.
